

Abstract

Mammalian disorders associated with a deficiency in the cytokine interleukin-10 (IL-10) can be alleviated by stimulating in vivo secretion and/or activity of IL-10 in the patient's blood or tissues by application of external 5 stimulus.